Introduction

Dear student, This is the first WebQuest you will participate in during the semester. I hope you enjoy it and learn as much as you can from it. Throughout this workshop, you will learn not only about concepts and procedures within the field of telecommunications, but also about how to read and interpret texts understanding their structure according to their communicative purposes. As an introduction, I would like to invite you to read a welcome message I wrote for you. Please go to http://rocioriveracid.wordpress.com/ and read the message written on this Blog. This internet tool (Blog) will be part of our evaluation instrument for this WebQuest and the next one you will work with. At this point, I know that you may not be familiar with the concept of WebQuest. The following section will be a short review of what a WebQuest consists of: read the information below and then watch the video I have linked in this WebQuest. What's a WebQuest? Click here http://webquest.org/. This Website gives you all the information you need to know about how WebQuests work.

Tasks

These are the tasks you will need to accomplish throughout the WebQuest:
1. You will scan and read the disciplinary text and work with its content.
2. You will search for information on the net to gather more information about concepts presented in the disciplinary text.
3. You will learn how to search for information understanding the rhetorical structure of the disciplinary text: Moves and Steps.

Process

Congratulations! You've made it to the series of steps you'll need to follow to complete this WebQuest. From now on, you'll have to follow 4 different steps. Each step has been carefully planned and described for you to be successful in this venture. Each of the steps has been added as a picture which you'll have to take a look at. You'll find the pictures with the instructions of each step below. DON'T FORGET! You must complete each step to move to the other one. Good luck!

Evaluation

You've done a great job! Now it's time to think of your evaluation. In this section you'll find the sections you'll be assessed in and the rubrics for your final evaluation. Good luck!
